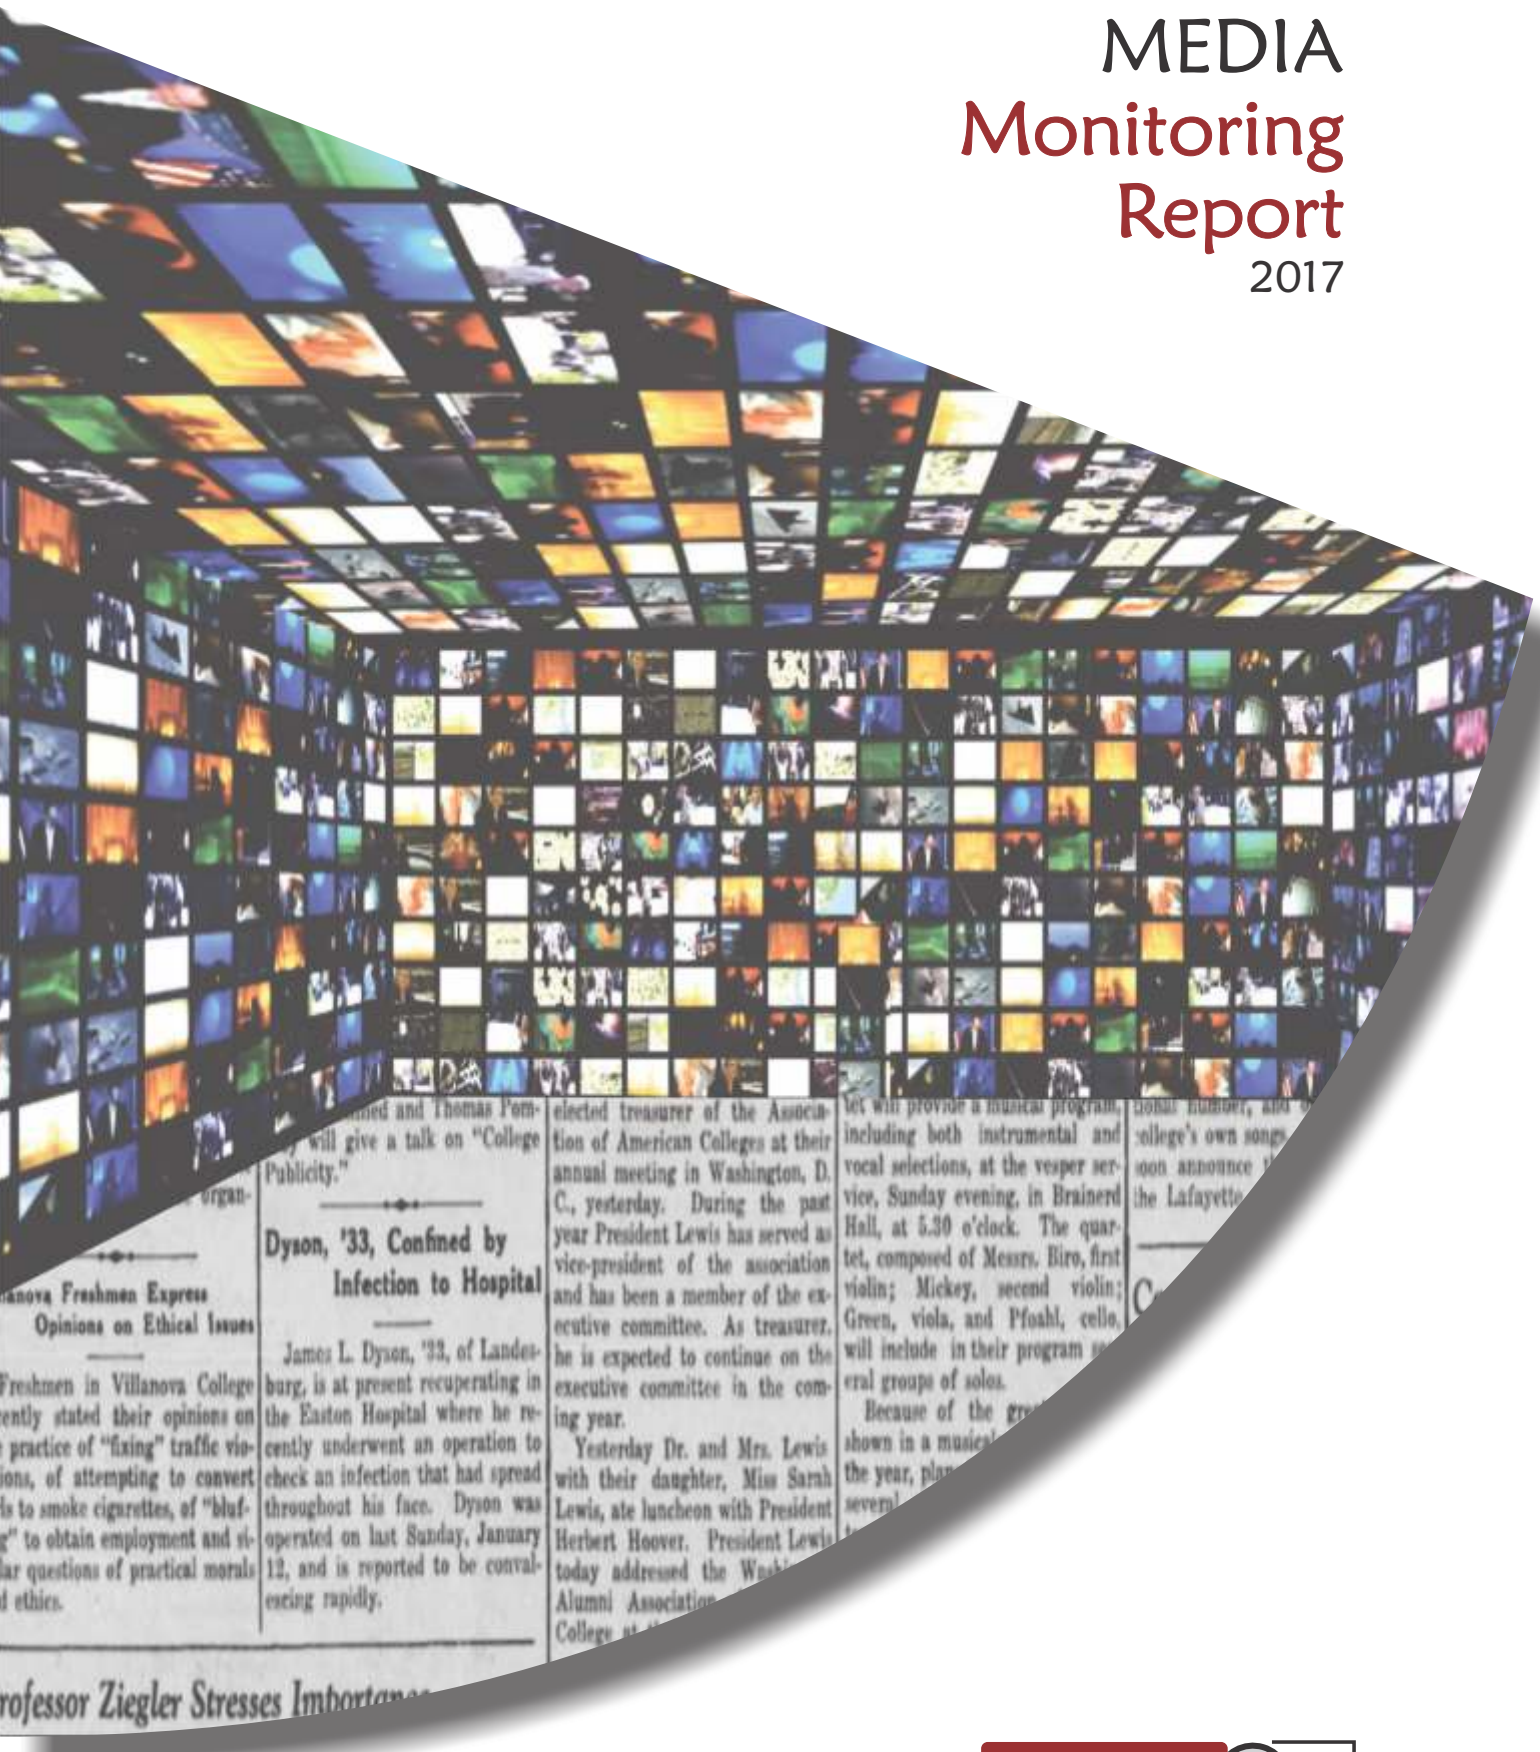
MEDIA Monitoring Report 2017



Media Monitoring

Disclamer

SAMAR in collaboration with OSF has undertaken this Media Monitoring as a project with very limited human resources. Monitors watched assigned television channels and filled questionnaires separately designed for each assignment by SAMAR. There is, however, a possibility of human error affecting the overall accuracy of the data. The report aims to give a representative sample of the Pakistani mainstream and regional media (both electronic and print) but cannot be used as evidence in any court of law. This is an attempt to gauge the trends and dynamics of media .

Introduction

The importance of media monitoring as a tool for change was officially recognized by the United Nations for the first time in Section J of the 1995 Beijing Platform for Action (BPFA). Media monitoring become important as it bridges the gap between activists and media professionals. It creates a link between the media and their audience who has the potential to lead to democratic, professional, more equitable and diverse media systems. Media monitoring is important in developing a critical mass to aware media consumers who lobby media for more diverse coverage. In particular, a free, pluralistic and independent news media, on all platforms, is important for facilitating good governance and transparency. Within the much-broadened media landscape, news media still remain central conduits for ongoing public assessments of the activities of government, other institutions and political parties that have developmental impact.

Interesting facts, observed in last three months of 2018, in electronic news monitoring are that most mainstream national TV channels spend more time on headline news than the detailed news. In prime time 9:00 pm news bulletin, around 25-30 news headlines are presented in first 15-20 minutes. More than 50% headlines have no news details. In the name of international news people are forced to watch some news which has no news value in Pakistan like in china a truck hit the pole on the road side and no one is injured or some very normal or local level dog show in Poland. There is rare news about "brexit" or Libya, Syria, Turkey.

The contest for ratings and public viewership, instead of leading to competition and professionalism has created an 'information leviathan' that de-politicizes, disfranchise and alienate the public from their due role in the affairs of the state, its politics and public policy making. However, over the years, the subsequent decline in the standards of the electronic media can only be attributed to economic competition. Its role as a highly proficient and powerful tool of projecting and disseminating information makes it a viable instrument for influencing public opinion in the hands of those who are in the corridors of power or what a 2010 IFP report termed as 'for-sale journalists ready to produce or reproduce stories according to the dictates of their customers'.

There may be women issue appears in ten percent of stories about an incident. But how do these stories actually portray women? In fact a story about a female may fall into as many stereotyped formula as a story about a beauty queen.In Pakistani media, the issue most of the time discussed in prime time is related to politics and when the issues that receive the most attention from media become the issues that the public discusses, debates, and demands action on. This means that the media is determining what issues and stories the public should thinks about. The heavy exposure to media causes individuals to develop an illusory perception of reality based on the most repetitive and consistent messages of a particular medium.

Interestingly, TV media or talk shows are becoming the source of information for the print media these days. In the evening, and till late night, people listen and watch TV news and talk shows and then next morning they read the same in the morning newspapers. This shows how media control the flow of information and limiting people's choices. Any member or analyst from any minority community is seldom invited on the talk shows. Women participants' percentage is also very low.

As compared to mainstream national media, one important limitation of the regional media is its geo-lingual nature. Geography and language both place certain kinds of constraint on the regional media. Its audience is limited to a certain language; therefore, the print and electronic media provide space to news emanating from their specific geographical area. However, this factor, by no way qualifies regional media outlets as a genuine source of public awareness and empowerment. Like the rest of the media houses, they tend to cater for their financial interests and propagate the dominant discourse.

Methodology

There were two main aspects to the monitoring. First and foremost, the study collects quantitative (i.e. numerical) data. This part of the project provides a detailed picture of the numbers of issues in the news, the types of story in which they are found, the roles they play in the news etc. Second is the qualitative monitoring that gets behind the numbers to explore the quality of the coverage.

The quantitative monitoring: First, the study collects quantitative (i.e. numerical) data. This part of the project provides a detailed picture of the numbers of issues in the news, the types of story, the areas they cover in the news etc. This information is compiled for every news story monitored. For each medium – television and print - a monitoring tools set out the areas in which information is needed and the range of answers possible. Monitoring tools and the Coding Sheets of both electronic and print media is slightly different, because slightly different information is needed for each medium.

The qualitative monitoring: Second, the numbers, or quantitative data, that are generated by the project tell only part of the story. To get a more complete picture of news content, the quality of the coverage needs to be analyzed. This is the qualitative aspect of the monitoring. We make a detailed study of some news stories to illustrate basic patterns in the news reporting.

Scope of the News:

5 basic scope were developed to monitor the duration of the news. This defines the interest of the TV channel and the flow of information they are gathering and passing to people. After 18th amendment, provinces have more power than ever in the history of Pakistan but provincial issues or news related to provinces are not that important for the mainstream media. Whatever the provincial governments do whether in the favor of people or not media teach people to look towards Islamabad for their issues. In sports unfortunately more than 80% time was allocated for the cricket only. No news or merely 5% news about our national game 'hokey'.

Issues:

25 generalize topic or issues were selected to monitor the mainstream media. According to the journalism, media should or must highlight the issues that directly effecting the people. In last one decade Pakistan's mainstream media made politics and politicians (only) the only issue for the masses. Health, education, food, water, sanitation or issues like this which concern people are not highlighted in media. No news about any culture of any area of Pakistan or local festival coverage were reported in this quarter. Everyone is talking about religious harmony but minorities are absent in news. This seam that minorities has no religious, social or ethic issues in any part of the country.

Media has penetrated into our lives because; people use the media for obtaining all kinds of information. On one hand, our media broadcasts repeated information about the different national and international issues while on the other hand, they at times fully ignore the very important news of the local people. Though news channels should act as a watchdog for protecting public and state rights. Not only protecting their rights, they should inform people about it.

Area Count:

Pakistan is agriculture country and according to latest census more than 50% of the population living in the rural areas. But as people of the rural areas are not the 'consumer' of some multinational companies so there is no space for them in the mainstream news. Agriculture news are only highlighted when they become political otherwise media channels have no interest in agriculture or people related to agriculture. Only few big cities and middle classes living in these areas are necessary for the news items not even the whole urban areas are covered properly. This media trend clearly indicate the commercialization in journalism and interests of the media owners.

Mostly, Media houses decide that which news should be appeared in the mainstream or which should be killed. In Pakistan, television is becoming the dominant communication medium on a national level and according to many survey findings of four provinces Sind, Punjab, KPK, GilgitBaltistan and Baluchistan shows that television is more highly consumed medium than radio and newspaper. But, unfortunately only Punjab gets the highest coverage among the all provinces. Even Media too considers other provinces as minorities.

Political Parties:

Political bashing is the general trend in main stream media of Pakistan. But this monitoring tool clearly shows how media is depoliticizing the people. Local politics is the basic nursery in any political system everywhere in the world but there is no news of local political parties or even local event of the mainstream political party in our mainstream media. Pakistan is divided into several regional and ethnic parts and there are many regional and nationalist political parties and members of these political parties want their voice to be heard on the higher level and for this media is the best tool these days but out so-called (democracy supporting) mainstream media neglecting all these parties and forcing people to be a "A" political.

News Source:

With the advent of 21st century, the Pakistani broadcast media industry has been flourished veryquickly. Many channels are established in this century, and even some are still emerging. The news channels are the medium of communication between the government and the local citizens. Usually people trust on their authenticity. Locals never question their legitimacy because, they considernews channels as a vital and most authentic source of information .It can play an important role in educating them about the true facts and figures. This can be done only by giving ample time to every issue of the state and also by discussing true facts. But unfortunately our electronic media these days forgot the basics of journalism and most reports are broadcast from desk. In the name of investigation few channels has developed "investigative cell" but only one sided stories are aired through this "cell". Reporters are not well trained or unaware of journalistic ethics. They dont know what to ask and how to ask questions. For example in incident reporting normally most reporters ask irrelevant questions or very quickly jump to political issue rather than current incident.

Ethics:

As it is very clear that media houses has the task of degrading the politicians and spreading disparity about politics. News about politics are normally broadcast with the help of video and audio effects, the others form of news like terrorism and sport with photos. Sometime in the headlines of prime time politician are being ridiculed by playing Indian songs as use background music for entertaining the viewers, mostly this technique apply in the political news when two opposition leader blaming to each other and also in the sport news according situation. After the headlines the in detail news bulletin use the document forms with the animation and graphics. During presenting news with graphics the tone is loud the news caster. In some rare case and in the breaking news they invite the expert opinion. Before the headlines they use sensational ticker for the upcoming headlines.

Words like “Patang katnay walon ki patang cut gyi”,"Lal ki nagri khoon se lal karny wala"suhanay mustakbil ki talash mout ki wadi mein le gyi" and apnay hi giratay hain nashaiman pe bijlian, " haye re duhai, mar dalay gi mehngai" Karachi ki dewarein bhi bolti hain" "Bharat ka Chaplosi program" Khursheed Shah ki Dabang Entry” were used to sensationalize the news.

Regional Media

KhyberNews, the news and current affairs channel, is the first 24-hour Pashtu news channel founded on July 16 2007 in Pakistan. Ever since its inception KhyberNews has speedily reached the heights of broadcasting popularity. Apart from regular news updates, KhyberNews offers a unique insight into many aspects of Pashtun history, culture and opinions. KhyberNews is available around the world on cable, satellite and online.

It has its news reporters located in all District Headquarters of Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, Pukhtun Districts of Balochistan, Karachi, Lahore, Islamabad and entire Tribal Belt of NWFP including Wana and South Waziristan. It has its Bureau Offices/Stingers in Kabul, Jalalabad, Kandahar, Herat, Mazar Sharif and Dubai. These offices and centers hold a work force of over 200 young and educated male and female workers who are working day and night to make it a success.

Kawish is a Sindhi daily newspaper in Pakistan. Kawish is published from Hyderabad. It is a property of Kazi Brothers. The Daily Kawish is the second most widely circulated Sindhi language paper.

Kawish began publishing on 4 August 1991 and going successfully under editorship of Ali Kazi, a renowned journalist of Pakistan. This newspaper is also part of three Sindhi channels i.e. KTN, KTN News, and Kashish(music channel) brought out under umbrella of "Kawish Group of Publication", a Media Group considered as a voice of Sindh.

Introduction:

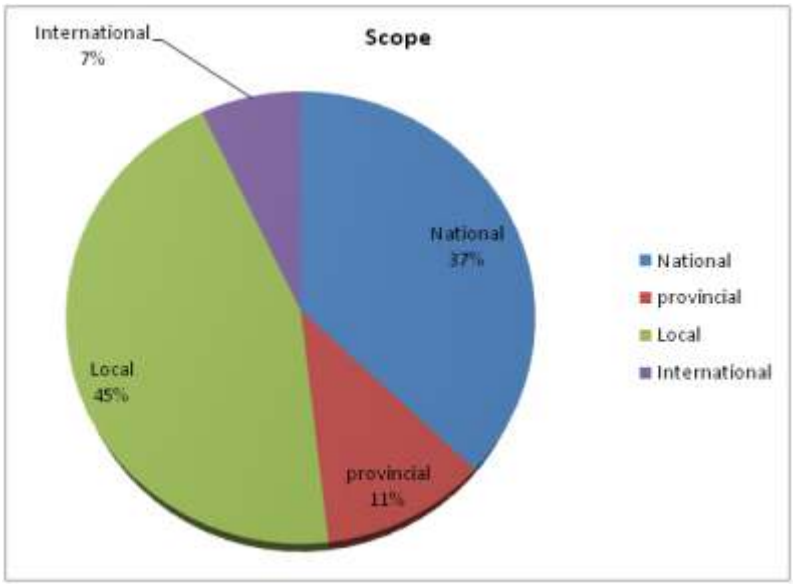
This report makes attempt to qualitatively elaborate the data that has been gathered by the monitoring of samples from both the print and electronic media. The monitored samples from the electronic media include prime time news in Pashtu aired by Khyber News and a talk-show from 92News. In the print media the report will focus on analysis of a Sindhi language daily, Kavish. The quantitative data includes the scope, nature and source of the news items. Similarly it also includes the monitoring of the time-span of each item.

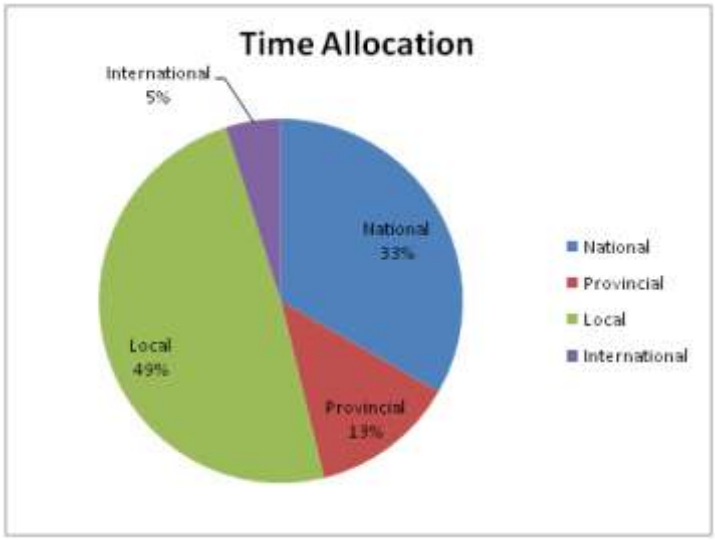
Since, out of three components two can be categorized as regional in nature, the report will primarily focus on the Pashtu prime time news and Sindhi newspaper. In times when the mainstream electronic is increasingly becoming homogenous in terms of nature and framing of issues, ratings and financial imperatives the current report will make an attempt to gauge the similarities and peculiarities, if any, that characterizes the regional print and electronic media.

One important limitation of the regional media is its geo-lingual nature. Geography and language both places certain kinds of constraint on the regional media. Its audience is limited to a certain language; therefore, the print and electronic media provides space to news emanating from their specific geographical area. In the same vein, this factor by no way qualifies regional media outlets as a genuine source of public awareness and empowerment. Like the rest of the media houses they tend to cater for their financial interests and propagate the dominant discourse.

KHYBER NEWS:

SCOPE OF THE NEWS: The monitored samples include news items aired during prime time. In the last quarter of the year 2017 Khyber News seems to have kept intact the trend of allotting a major chunk of the airtime to news that is either national or local in nature. It is interesting to note that while the count of news items that are national in nature have surged from October to December 2017, it has failed to effect the time duration of the local news. For instance a total of 188 news items were aired in the month of December with time duration of 308 minutes while in the same month 171 local news items accounted for 313 minutes. Similarly, the channel aired 107 less national news items then local, yet the time difference is staggering. Whereas national news items (453) consumed 737 minutes, news that was local in nature (546) took 1083





Thus while the number count of items presents a kind of a rough balance between the National and the provincial, the minutes count presents a different picture. Almost half of the airtime during the prime time is allotted to news that qualifies as local in nature. The channel's policy to give almost equal coverage to national and local news is indeed worth praising it must be noted that local news itself is a category that needs to be further problematized in order to see whether the channel give equal coverage to different areas which can be distinguished as urban and rural.

It is interesting to note that only the provincial capitals, Peshawer and Quetta makes for 45% of the local news. Compared to the rest of the urban areas of KP, 22% of the local news came from rural areas of the province. Most of these items came from the rural areas of the Peshawer Valley, Malakand Division and Bannu. Certain areas of southern KP were almost completely ignored. On par with rural KP stands FATA which got 20% of coverage, mostly for matters pertaining to terrorism and the security forces. News coming from rural Balochistan was mostly limited to the Pashtun areas apart from a few terrorist incidents that took place in the Baloch dominated areas. In spite of boosting a considerable Pashtun population the channel covered the area inadequately.

As the data charts indicate the primary area of focus for the channel remains the Peshawer valley and the city itself. The unevenness in terms of covering different geographical areas, were some area get preferential coverage while others are swept under the carpet is a trait that is not peculiar to Khyber News alone rather it seems to be the standard in both the print and mainstream electronic media. It tends to assume even more importance once the scope of news is linked to nature of issues covered. The primary objective of informing the masses gets lost in the fog of what sells best in the market. Thus, sometimes events and incidents that genuinely qualify as peoples issues are sacrificed at the altar of corporate imperatives and media ratings.

NATURE OF ISSUES: The analysis of the news samples monitored during the prime time seems to be in line with the dominant trends of the mainstream media. The channel provides a considerable amount of airtime to the political squabbling among political parties. Party officials are given ample time to attack their opponents and defend their respective positions. The confrontational rhetoric of the ousted prime minister against state institutions specifically judiciary and his thinly veiled accusations against the armed forces were covered. Meanwhile the appearance of the Sharif family in accountability courts and the PTI's reaction to these developments constituted the main part of the news. The NA-4 camapign and subsequent by-election on 26th of October 2017, only furthered the war of words between the two parties.

The channel also covered continously the developments regarding the appointment of the new NAB chief, political rallies held by parties such as the PPP, ANP and PTI. Amidist these political rallies, protests carried out by people relating to different walks of life against the provincal government were also given coverage. However, the channel shys aways from any direct criticism of the provincial government.

Meanwhile, Dengue outbreak in the province and the rising toll of fatalities although given coverage lacked in-depth reporting about the scale and intensity of the issue and how it was symptomatic of the provincial government failure to tackle health and governance issues on the ground. The channel must be accredited for giving coverage to the issue of Pinenut rates in South and North Waziristan which become a prime reason for widespread protests in the agencies against the political administration. The channel also covers the issues of health and education from FATA. Reports about the poor health and education infrastructure are often part of the prime time news.

The subsequent month continued with the same trend with the Faizabad Dharna as the new trend. Dharna and the politiking around it consumed much of the prime time. The rise to 26.17% in the national news from the preceding 17.42% in October can be primarily attributed to this event. The government was readily presented as besieged from all sides by tough talking opponents. The momentum evaporated into thin air once the protestors decided to end their protest. December 2017 saw no visible difference in trends as the previous issues continued to linger on with the exception of Trump rising the 'Do More' bar even futher. The issue of FATA reforms bill was given coverage albeit a lack of indepth investigative reporting was lacking once again.

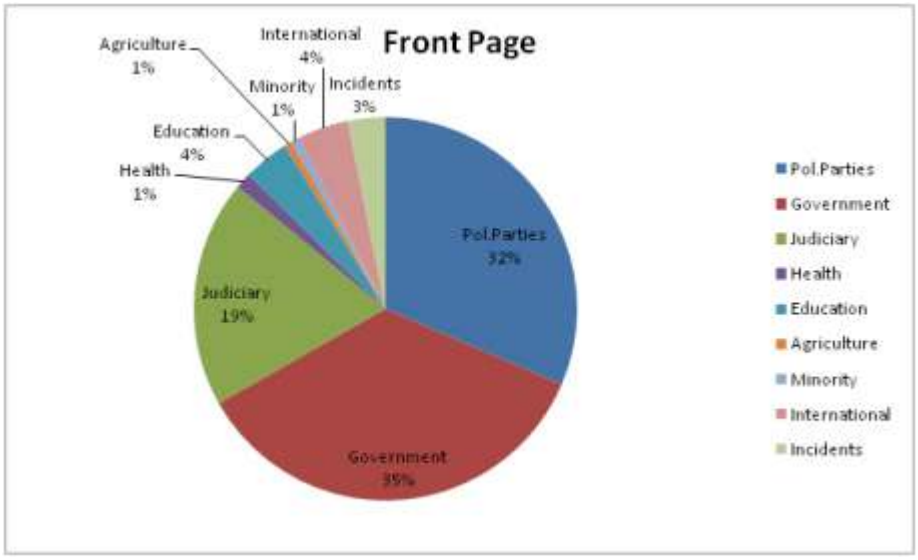
While trends are there to be replaced by new ones, the monitored data points towards some uncomfortable and alarming facts that often get ignored under the diversity of the issues that are covered.

It is important to note that news emanating from state institutions and the working of the government such as Law Enforcement Agencies (LEAs), Judiciary and the functioning of the government alone contribute a staggering 67% of the total news during the prime time. This includes issues pertaining to army, the police and foreign affairs. On the other hand the issues which genuinely effects the lives of millions are often squeezed into the last segment of the bulletin. Only 9% of the news items were related to health and education. This includes the daily update of the dengue death toll.

Similarly out of a total 1221 news items that were monitored only eight items were related to minorities. In the wake of steep rise in violence against minorities and women it is indeed bewildering to see that only one percent of the total news qualified as gender based. While the channel highlighted governance projects such as the Swat motorway or the Peshawer Rapid Bus Transit as grand projects it failed to highlight in detail the state of water management and agriculture in the province. Only one percent of the total news was related to agriculture. Thus the channel has not only a policy based on geographical unevenness but also one of unevenness in terms of issues covered. Most of the news is related to the working of the upper echelons of the state and political elite while public issues gets minimal coverage.

KAVISH NEWSPAPER:

Kavish newspaper is one of the largest Sindhi language newspapers. The current report is based on the monitoring of samples based on the front and back as well as the editorial pages. As the data does not include the whole newspaper some of the categories such as minorities remain poorly represented as most of the news of such nature is printed in the city pages. However the current analysis which is based on the front and back pages in itself presents an interesting review of the data.



Front and Editorial Pages:

Keeping in line with the dominant trend the front page of the newspapers continues to be primarily focused on national and provincial politics. In the same vein it covers the working of the national and provincial governments. The ensuing war of words between the party in power and the PTI was allotted a fair chunk of the space. Approximately 507 and 569 news items on the front page were related to political parties and government respectively. Judiciary which remains at the center of the current political imbroglio stood at 309. In contrast, only 84 items were related to health (22) and education (62).

Given the poor track record of the PPP led Sindh government in the education and health sectors it is startling to see the under-representation of these issues on the front page. These concerns are further cemented by the editorial pages of the newspaper. Whereas only 20 columns/editorials were related to health (11) and education (9), Judiciary stood at 10 while 46 columns/editorials were related to culture and history of Sind. The number further dwarfs in comparison to editorials and columns related to political parties (57) and Government (52).

Back Page:

Three issues stands visibly apart from the rest due to their high number. News related to incidents which is mainly local in nature stands at 796, followed by news related to culture which stands at 301 while there were 245 news items which were international in nature. Starting from the last, international news mainly works as fillers in the back page. Apart from the growing estrangement between the US and Pakistan most of the international news serves no other visible purpose rather than filling blank space on the back pages.

The surge in news related to culture and history can be attributed to the Sindhi TopiAjrak Day festivities. While there were only 31 and 10 items in the other two months December saw a sudden surge with 260 items. Functions, theatre and poetry recitations events were celebrated across the length and breadth of the province. For almost three days the back page was dedicated to the coverage of the event.

News related to incidents, on average occupies the most space on the back page. Ranging from traffic incidents to suicide and murder the back page cover incidents from across Sindh. The newspaper doesn't shy away from publishing the pictures of the deceased. It is interesting to note that these three issues are followed by protests. More than 137 protests were given coverage on the back page of the newspapers. Protestors ranging from sugarcane farmers to teachers and doctors as well as students got ample coverage from the newspaper. The newspaper also covered the plight of sugar cane farmers in Sindh in the editorial pages of the newspaper. News related to health from 22 on the front page to 69 on the back while news pertaining to education experienced a slight dip with 62 on the front and 58 on the back page. It is interesting to note that while government and judiciary both were mentioned in 100 items each health and education or for that matter agriculture failed to score high even on the back page of the newspaper.

As a whole Kavish newspaper tends to cater for its targeted audience. The internal pages of the newspapers are completely dedicated to political, social and economic problems of the people. It is probably the only newspaper which regularly features a column on the history and culture of Sindh. Though minimal it tends to cover the issue of water and other governance related problems that the people of Sindh are facing.

Dawn News is one of Pakistan's 24-hour Urdu news channel. Based in Karachi, the channel is a subsidiary of Pakistan Herald Publications Limited (PHPL), Pakistan's largest English-language media group. The test transmission of the channel occurred on 25 May 2007, and the channel went live on 23 July 2007. Originally in English, on 15 May 2010, Dawn News converted into an Urdu news channel after successful test transmission of four hours a day. The conversion was mainly due to its financial crisis and thin viewer ship in the country.

Society for Alternative Media and Research (SAMAR)is a non-governmental organization based in Pakistan's federal capital, Islamabad. It was established in 2005. SAMAR works as a watchdog on media by monitoring and analyzing the contents of news and views in the mainstream and regional print and electronic media with citizens' perspective for democratic participation.

Publications

Published a book "SahafataurJamhoriat: Ehd bah Ehd", archiving history of newspapers, editors and journalists who struggled for democracy and freedom of press (2017). Published fortnightly online magazine "Media Mirror" to educate journalists and citizens on media ethics and transparent and responsible media. Co-publisher with FES and Citizens' Initiative on Media Issues (CIMI) of a 370 pages book entitled "Report and Recommendations of the Media Commission appointed by the Supreme Court of Pakistan." Published quarterly "Media Review" in Urdu for four years. SAMAR monitored eight news channels and six newspapers for the past two years (2016-2017). SAMAR also monitored and analyzed Balochistan'slocal government election coverage by English and Urdu newspapers and national and regional TV channels in Sindhi, Saraiki, Punjabi and Pashto languages. An analytical report was published.Monitored and analyzed coverage of "General Elections 2013" by six news channels (English and Urdu) keeping in view the Election Commission of Pakistan's code of ethics for news media. Analytical reports were published. (2013)
